ABOUT:

Andy Cianchi has been planning, coordinating & leading expeditions around the world for twenty years

Extensive experience facilitating remote field-based scientific & exploration programs

A skilled & qualified team manager, trainer & educator with a solid understanding of Australian & international Antarctic programs

Based in Hobart, Tasmania, Andy offers a professional wilderness & Antarctic consulting service

HISTORY:

After starting out as an engineer apprentice Andy became an outdoor educator, instructor & guide

Climbing, skiing & adventuring inspired Andy to secure employment as a resort manager in France before heading to Africa to lead four wheel drive tours

After successfully evacuating clients from Kigali during the Rwandan civil war, Andy moved to Australia where he secured employment working in outdoor education, training and risk management consulting

Andy has contributed to the outdoor, industrial & scientific communities through the design & manufacture of a range of products & equipment

Today Andy runs a busy consultancy specialising in Antarctic & wilderness expedition planning and preparation and expeditioner training, industrial remote & high access solutions and associated training.
